An intuitive easy to learn .. hard to master game of drone madness.

Pros: The flight dynamics are really An effective and rsposive. I great use of the VR hand controller.

note: this game only requires on hand controller. Currently in early access so I feel the developer has a few more tircks up his sleeve in terms of game levels. Some thumping beats..

Cons: The flashng strobe light get a bit much... Would be nice to have the choice to turn them off.

Single environment - felt a bit clostrophobic.

no multiplayer

. Really polished and fun. The controls are really great, and it's just a great example of a relatively simple concept that's been executed very well. The graphics and music are a great fit too. Especially loved the missile levels.. This is cool. It's definitely worth it on sale. It's basically The Lab's remote control flying vehicle in obstacle courses.. Like others have said, polished game with great control over the drone. Nice variance of challenging levels to keep it interesting. Will keep coming back to try and hone my skills.

Hope for more from this title. Also..

I can now play left handed!!!

Handling the drone controls and angles needed with my left hand feels much more natural than trying to learn on my right.

Thank you to the Dev for updating this feature!!. Good game. Some imbalance in scoring and difficulty due to apparently randomized spawns that don't check the drone's current location. It's possible to be at the spawning point and artificially get full points with no effort. At the same time you could get a bad spawn theoretically and lose points due to no fault of your own. However it's a fun game and this is just some feedback.. Drone Hero is a very fun, simple game that really helps with fine motor control!

Drone Hero is one incredibly great game. I've had a hard time finding VR games that actually provide fun gameplay, but this one is a real winner! The controls are intuitive, the levels are fun and sometimes really challenging, and the music is just great. I'd say this is basically a must-have for any Vive or Oculus owner.. You control a drone in 3rd person by twisting your controller. I found it especially hard to move the drone toward me.

I'm sure some people are into a game like this, I'm just not one of them. Give it a go and see if you like it. After all, it's well-made.. I'm impressed! It's early days but the game is well polished and makes good and innovative use of VR. It's like having a private games room in a club with a serious lighting system and a wild sound track to boot (although if you suffer from photosensitivity, steer clear).

The control scheme is simple and easy to pickup while making excellent use of the Vive controller. There's also a great feeling of progression as you get through the levels and the difficulty level seems about right. That said, it'll take some serious skillz to master it..

If you're looking for a fun VR ready game with a decent sideorder of challenge this is definitely worth a look. It'll be cool to see where this goes - multiplayer especially could be really cool.. Cool game, nothing like flying a real drone but the controls are great. I definitely recommend it. Good difficulty curve, fun challenges. I beat half of them before I had to stop playing due to my wrists hurting. There is no option to select the drone control deadzone, which forces me to twist my wrist in awkward rotations (Oculus Touch). It might have been designed with a vive, without an offset for touch controllers? I was also not able to find an option to control the drone with my left hand.

. Yeah simple drone game is actually really fun. Pull trigger to go higher & tilt touch to move around & control is really precice & responsive. You have to hit targets, the quicker you hit them the more point you get. You have to overcome obstactles that become increasingly harder.

Feels very realstic to fly this little drone & setting is in a small room that has flahing lights & music.

if i'm honest the game is a bit odd but it just works.

It maybe a little too easy as i'm half way through the levels so i hope they add more.
